After finishing her apprenticeship in July 2013, Fanny Crausaz started to work in a training stable in France. End of 2014 she got another job as work rider with a trainer in North America. During summer time his horses are trained and raced in Canada and during the winter time he moves to Florida in the south of the United States of America.

After one year working as work rider, her trainer gave her for the first time the chance to ride in a race in spring 2015. This was already a big success for Fanny considering the strong competition among the predominantly male jockeys in the United States. With her three wins and several places during June and July of this year, she succeeded definitively to establish her as a professional rider.

We wish Fanny to continue her career with a lot of success, healthiness and fun.
